

A free and open internet is as crucial to democracy as freedom of the press. In fact, opening the door to corporate manipulation is tantamount to censorship, which is unacceptable in a truly free society. Therefore, Internet neutrality must be preserved or else we are just one giant step closer to an oligarchy based on the fantasy of free market economics.